

Possibility of Merger Between Rail Giants

NEW YORK (AP) — The rail giants, their profits off, are considering a merger that would create the world's largest railroad in revenue and assets.

Citing common problems and changed economic conditions, the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads yesterday announced they have begun studies looking toward a possible merger into one consolidated system.

The two roads are the largest in the country, based on annual revenue. Their combined assets are in excess of 5½ billion dollars.

The announcement by James M. Symes, president of the Pennsylvania, and Alfred E. Perlman, president of the Central, was made after the New York and other stock exchanges had closed for the day.

Stocks of the railroads on the New York exchange were both off 12½ cents. Previous announcements of planned mergers have been reflected on the exchange by surges of activity.

Wall Street observers took a rather skeptical view of the proposed merger, pointing out the many roadblocks that would have to be cleared, approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the possibility that the Justice Department could intervene on antitrust grounds.

Railroad and investment men indicated it could be years before the Central and Pennsylvania operated as a single company on the same tracks.

The ICC has long held that connecting lines should not be permitted to merge. The commission has refused to approve the effort by Robert R. Young, chairman of the Central, to merge the Central and the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad because the ICC said the result would be loss of "extensive competition" between the two railroads.

The Pennsylvania and Central compete in some areas, chiefly between New York and Chicago.

In Washington, both the ICC and the Justice Department declined comment last night on the merger possibility. In proposed railroad mergers, the ICC investigates to determine if, among other things, the proposal would be in the public interest. The Justice Department usually intervenes to follow the testimony presented.

Other possible roadblocks included possible objection by states and cities served by the railroads and the fact that stockholders of both companies would have to approve the consolidation.

Is World History Repeating Itself?

U. S. Spies Find Going Tougher Now

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI has penetrated the American Communist Party, American spies overseas are having a tougher time behind the Iron Curtain.

As for the getting information on what goes on among the leaders of the Russian Communist Party, President Eisenhower has indicated the best we can do is guess.

It's not news that the Central Intelligence Agency — this country's supersecret overseas spy organization — has trouble in the Communist World.

What happened this week was a reminder the CIA is still having trouble.

For days the world-including the Eisenhower administration — has been wondering what is happening to Marshal Georgi Zhukov who was riding high as Russia's defense minister and now suddenly has been knocked off his pedestal in the Kremlin hierarchy.

That may have been one of the reasons why Allen W. Dulles, director of the CIA, was included among 23 top government officials who conferred yesterday with Eisenhower, although he frequently attends such meetings of the National Security Council.

Eisenhower was reminded at his news conference Wednesday that some weeks ago he expressed the view Zhukov's position among the Russian leaders seemed greatly strengthened.

Then over last weekend Zhukov was suddenly — it seemed almost brutally — yanked out of his job as Russia's defense minister. And the Kremlin hasn't yet explained why or what is going to happen to Russia's wartime hero.

In view of what Eisenhower had said about Zhukov — followed by what happened to him — a reporter asked the President:

"I wonder if you could tell us whether you are satisfied whether the intelligence estimates you received about that Zhukov's demotion were quite adequate."

The President answered:

"Any effort to penetrate the Soviet mind or at least the mind of the men in the Kremlin to determine their reasons for doing anything is highly speculative and that is all it is."

"I don't think that any intelligence system can really give you a complete and positive answer on this."

He added that this country didn't know what had happened to Zhukov.

It's possible most of the Kremlin's top men didn't know either until Nikita Khrushchev, Russian Communist party boss, and his inner circle made the decision.

Report Coty Is Ready to Resign

PARIS (UP) — Reports circulated in Paris today that President Rene Coty was on the verge of resigning in disgust at the month-old government crisis.

Pelux Gaillard was trying to form a cabinet but has run into difficulties because of the fence-sitting tactics of the powerful Socialist Party. He is the fifth man to attempt to end the worst political crisis since the end of the war.

The rumors about Coty were so strong that the Paris leftwing "Express" said he already has drafted a message to the National Assembly deputies warning he will quit unless a government is formed soon.

The "Express," which backs radical ex-Premier Pierre Mendes-France, as the only publication to carry the report. But observers already have anticipated such a move by Coty as the political deadlock worsened.

Gaillard has made it plain he would scrap his efforts to form a government unless the Socialists agreed to participate. But he has also asked for the participation of the Independents, the political arch-enemies of the Socialists.

Chaing Kai-Shek Observes Birthday

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — President Chiang Kai-shek celebrated his birthday today after "telling" overseas Chinese, here for the occasion, that he will be very glad to meet them on the mainland.

Chiang, 71 by Chinese reckoning and 70 by the Western calendar, was dinner host to more than 600 overseas Chinese at the City Hall last night. He assured them his government will definitely hasten its plans for counter-attacking and recovering the lost China mainland.

Fire Destroys TV Studio at Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — Fire of undetermined origin early today destroyed the Little Rock studios of television station KATV, with damage estimated at $400,000.

The blaze apparently started in the main studio on a storeroom at the rear, and spread quickly to the remainder of the building.

News Director Oscar Alagood said the fire was discovered about 3 a. m., by a young woman who lives two doors away. He said she awoke with the glare of flames in her face. She heard an explosion which ripped a door off the rear of the building.

The Little Rock Fire Department sent four pump companies, two truck companies and two chiefs. They prevented the spread of flames to several other buildings and houses only a few feet away from the studio.

Alagood said the station will be on the air today with its usual programming. The station has another studio at Pine Bluff, and its transmitter is at Redfield, between Little Rock and Pine Bluff.

Alagood estimated the damage. He said it included a large amount of film. Alagood said the company carried some insurance, but he did not know how much.

John Fugate is manager of the station.

McChesney is a former president with the electric industry for the past 40 years. He began his career as a salesman in 1917.

President to Visit Again at West Point

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower travels to West Point, N. Y., today for a reunion at the military academy with some of his 1916 classmates. He also will see Army's football team play Colgate tomorrow.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower arranged to take off in mid-afternoon aboard his private plane, Columbine III. After a scheduled 30-minute flight to Stewart Air Force Base, they go by automobile to the nearby academy and stay overnight at the Thayer Hotel.

This is Eisenhower's first trip back to his alma mater since June 1955, when he returned for the 40th reunion of his graduation class and also delivered that year's commencement address.

Tonight the Eisenhowers plan a quiet dinner in their hotel suite, probably with a small group of friends.

Tomorrow morning the President and about 30 of his classmates—approximately one third of those still living—will assemble on the West Point parade grounds for presentation of a class gift, a drinking fountain, to the academy.

After that ceremony Eisenhower will review the corps of cadets.

The President will go from the parade grounds to Culham Hall where he and Mrs. Eisenhower will join his classmates and their wives for lunch in advance of the Army-Colgate football game at Miltie Stadium.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower plan to fly back to Washington after tomorrow's game.

Syria, Turk Tension Eased in Agreement

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (INS) — Syria and Turkey reportedly reached agreement today to drop all proposed formal U. N. action on their border dispute.

Just prior to resumption of U. N. assembly debate on the washed out Soviet-made "crisis" Japanese ambassador Dr. Koto Matsudaira told newsmen:

"It's all settled. We are in full agreement."

Matsudaira represented the West in negotiations with the Syrians for a "gentlemen's agreement" to end the hassle.

Gov. Knight Is Reported Off GOP Ticket

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Goodwin Knight was all but written off the Republican ticket for governor today by his continued silence over his reported withdrawal from the race against Sen. William F. Knowland.

But Knight, vacationing out of the state, had no assurance that he could have the GOP nomination for the U. S. Senate without an "assault" that's the job he decided to seek instead of reelection.

Mayor George Christopher of San Francisco, reached a tour of Greece, said firmly he would not give up his quest for the Senate and predicted he would win the nomination. Knowland has announced he's giving up his Senate seat and he began his campaign for governor.

Two other Republican Senate candidates indicated they would await Knight's decision. They are State Controller Robert C. Kirkwood and Warren K. Altherton, Stockton attorney and former national commander of the American Legion.

Rep. Clair Engle (D-Calif.), leading contender on the Democratic ticket, reaffirmed his intention to run whether Knight goes after the Senate seat held by Knowland since 1944.

Navy Is Sure of Meeting Russian Attack

By C. YATES MC DANIEL

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii (AP) — The Navy's confidence in its ability to crush any new aggression in Asia is tempered by the strong hunch that the manner and place of the next Communist move may rule out American military action.

Both the confidence and the caution are found and voiced in this Pacific command headquarters, which is the nerve center of the American watch on the Asian seaboard.

Voicing the demands for prompt decisive action against aggression were Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, and Adm. Felix Stump, commander in chief of Pacific Ocean area land, sea and air forces. They talked with visiting newsmen in Stump's offices on a hillside overlooking Pearl Harbor.

Stump brushed aside suggestions of timidity, saying: "We are not going to stop aggressions by being afraid to risk war."

Burke, fresh from a prolonged tour of the Western Pacific, put it even more bluntly: "If a nation aggresses, she must be punished fast, and on the spot."

But Stump, who commands a vast array of warships, planes and atomic weapons, also sounded the sobering note that "subversion is a night out of hand" and "a Communist coup might occur" in Southeast Asia "before we could do anything about it."

Burke narrowed the more immediate danger areas to the smaller nations which lack strong alliances with the United States. In such places, right now, said Burke, "the Russians are probably figuring how much hell they can raise without getting into too much danger."

A sifting of the great volume of reports coming to Pearl Harbor from many sources in many Asian lands leads to the conclusion that Indonesia is one of the prime targets for Communist control and may be ripe for plucking without a shot.

Dogged by internal dissensions and armed revolts, the government of Indonesia has accepted so many favors from native Communists that the payoff hour may not be far off, these reports indicate.

Stubbly, neutralist after breaking all ties with the Netherlands, Indonesia rejected American offers of military aid. Because there is no alliance or even a mutual aid agreement with the United States, any direct American military intervention would be deemed as imperialism and will be avoided scrupulously.

Bob Hope Show Is Cancelled

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bob Hope's television show scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 7, has been cancelled, NBC announced.

Earlier, Times Corp. had withdrawn sponsorship of the Hope program because he appeared as a guest on Frank Sinatra's ABC-TV show. The sponsor of the Sinatra show is another watch firm, Bulova.

NBC said another sponsor wanted to step in for Hope's show but there was not enough time to prepare commercials for Nov. 7. A new schedule for the Hope show will be announced.

Mitchell Mentioned for Kansas Job

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UP) — Jack Mitchell, a native son of Kansas who has proven his coaching ability in the big time, was the man most mentioned today for the Kansas University coaching job.

Mitchell is reported to have been offered the Kansas job on a five-year contract at $15,000 a year, more than Kansas has ever paid a coach. He would not comment on the report.

Peace Prevails At Lone Star Following Truce

DAINGERFIELD, Tex. (AP) — An uneasy peace prevailed today in the Lone Star Steel Co. labor dispute after strikers accepted a truce which means many will be returning to work.

Pickets were removed from around the sprawling steel plant last night. This followed a three-hour meeting of about 2,000 strikers, all but 50 of whom voted to go back to work.

Military residents, aroused by bombings, shotgun blasts and threats during the seven-week wildcat strike, were hopeful the truce would end tensions that had gripped a 10-county area around the huge steel plant.

Chris Dixie, of Houston, regional attorney for the United Steelworkers of America said the idled workers agreed to abide by union recommendations that they return to work, made after a conference with company lawyer.

"The action amounted to a truce and not a settlement," Dixie said. "None of the aggravations have been settled but are left for the future. The international union intends to process an arbitration case."

He said this case would cover the main points in the dispute.

When the workers struck Sept. 21, they said it was because the company was disregarding the seniority system outlined in their three-year contract, which runs until September, 1959.

The company fired all those who walked off the job and later said any accepted for re-employment would be considered new employees without seniority. It also reserved the right to re-elect job applicants from leaders of the strike.

Less than half the men still out when the settlement was reached will find jobs available. The company said only 800 were open. Nearly 700 union members refused to join the walkout and 950 new employees have been hired since the strike started.

Union sources had estimated 1,500 to 2,300 were idled. "We will welcome back those strikers who can qualify for employment," said L. D. Webster of Dallas, company vice president.

Dixie said strikers not placed immediately will be put on a reserve list from which the company has agreed to fill vacancies. Weary strikers, who stood six hours around union headquarters in the nearby town of Lone Star, appeared glum after the meeting.

A small but vocal group of strikers argued hotly for continuing the walkout.

Dixie said, however, only about 50 of the approximately 2,000 union members voting were opposed to resuming work.

"Missing two paydays and the rent payments" was the reason for the decision given by one butty steelworker.

"Were buying a house and need the money to make this month's payment," explained a young striker's wife as she sat in the family car with her three children.

"And maybe we can get a little sleep for a change," she added. "I'm tired of all these bombings and things."

Her grim-faced husband had nothing to say.

Child Dies When Home Is Burned

MARKED TREE (L) - A 3-year-old Negro girl, Helen Burney, died yesterday in a fire at her home here.

Apparently the blaze started from an overheated oil stove. Ella Mae Morris, 10, a neighbor said she heard screams, saw smoke, ran to the house and pulled Johnnie Mae Burney, 5-year-old sister of the victim, to safety. The Morris girl said flames prevented her from reaching the other child.

Mrs. Odell Burney, the children's mother, was working in nearby Tyrone when the fire occurred.

SANTA FE, N. M. (AP)—The incidence of influenza continued to spiral upward in New Mexico as the State Health Dept. reported that the week ended Oct. 26 was the worst on record. A department spokesman said 5,003 cases were reported during the week. The previous record was 3,773 cases during the week ended Oct. 12. would start getting restless, waiting for me to get going on a jump tune. But now I can sing three ballads in a row and they'll listen quickly."

Though she sings jazz, Ella mixes r'n'r.

"I just don't like it," she said. "Not for me at any rate. At first, I think, the songs were too suggestive. The kids got too wild when they heard them. It was a natural reaction—one girl starts yelling when she hears Elvis and another one thinks she could, too. Pretty soon it's a riot."

"But I think the kids are getting so they want to understand jazz. They listen now and appreciate when they hear something good."

The same is true in Europe, she said. She tours there four months a year, singing before packed audiences. They're quiet and attentive, she said, listening carefully for the nuances of jazz.

Ella is back home to do a movie, the W. C. Handy film, "The St. Louis Blues." She plays herself in this one, singing "The Boogie Woogie Blues." A couple of years ago, she played a dramatic role for Jack Webb in "Pete Kelly's Blues."

"I'd like to do more acting. I think it's good to be able to do different things," she said. "The only trouble is that I'm shy. I can dance and do comedy at home, but when it comes to doing it in front of an audience, I get nervous. I'm not sure people are going to like me."

Her latest release is a "Porgy and Bess" album with Louis Armstrong, and she handles the Gershwin arias with great skill.

Research Reveals Tips About Heart

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The president of the American Heart Assn., Dr. R. W. Wilkins of Boston, said yesterday research will turn up the answers to hardening of the arteries, coronary diseases and high blood pressure within the next 10 years.
Dr. Wilkins spoke before a meeting of the St. Louis Heart Assn. "We can pretty well prevent the less common heart diseases—rheumatic fever, congenital heart disease—but the big problem is the adult diseases," he said.
"We're going to lick them, too," he returned. But he hadn't counted on a visit to Prole's.

Gatling's voice turned low. "Lou Bray's back. There's a couple men in this camp would like to see you. And a lot more wouldn't give you no chance at all on a dark night."

Dave nodded as he paid his bill. He led the gray about through the doorway and up the block toward the Empress. There were a number of men now seated aboard their horses in front of the saloon and Lou Bray was coming from the entrance. He got almost to his horse before spying Dave, then his face took on a scowl.

Dave dropped his reins over a rack, seeing with a sidelong glance that Eban Browne loomed against the corner logs at the foot of Quinn's stairway. Without risking a full look, Dave saw that Browne wore a gun in his waistband. Remounting "How" wasted Browne had appeared to him on the stagecoach he wished the man was off the street where he might be hurt in a fight with Bray. Then Browne's voice drifted to him levelly.
"All right, Dave. Give them sally characters what they're pesterin' for. I'll back you up." "No," Dave said, "you'll take beneath his breath at Browne, hat- ing to see him involved.

Lou Bray's eyes were packed with malice. "You ain't stopping us this time, Sharadin. We're tak- ing some land."
"I'll give you one fair warn- ing," Dave said. "Stay off Block S or you'll come to a bad end." The men with Bray guffawed. They were ex-gold hunters recruited from the various camps, plow- men of sorts, who scouted work for a living. There would be no respect in this bunch until they had been taught the hard way. Bray climbed on his horse.

Dave turned quickly to Browne, his frown still furrowing his face. "You shouldn't buy in this way. Think of your wife."

Eban Browne smiled meekly. "I guess I'm your friend, Dave. Why, after the Indian fight, it couldn't hardly be different."
Dave stayed at Eban Browne, knowing the sick man meant it. He asked, "How is your wife?" "Not so good. We moved in up- stairs."
"Take care," Dave said and walked to the saloon. He didn't know as yet that Sherry had moved from the Empress.

Bartender Quinn stood rigid be- hind the counter. "Stop where you are. I won't have Sharadins in here!"
His hands were below the bar- top and Dave sensed they were on his shotgun. "Dave read this man fully as he walked toward the bar. Block S had thrown a stig- ma upon this saloon, had done it deliberately, and maliciously so the townsmen would suspect Quinn of profiting from stolen beef. For that Block S owed him an apology. Some men could be slapped in the face and they'd take it, but when their principles were assailed it was hitting him to steel.

"That's the last step!" Quinn warned angrily.

CHAPTER XXII

Kains stood at the corral, still gal- lered by his anger. He picked out the tawny-faced man who last night had stopped Clay Green across a saddle. "Lamar," he said in a brittle-toned voice. "I want you to get to Castle Rock. Tell them six hands I need them at the lanks."

Lamar stood waiting for the balance of his orders. It was 20 miles to Castle Rock, the furthest point north Block S claimed for grass. If he was being sent there it must mean Kains was on the march.

Finally Kains told him the rest. "We're making a show at patrol- ling the lines. When those Castle Rock fellows get here the show's over. We're going to drive every- thing that's against us off Block S grass."

Anger flared north Kains swung aboard a big bay one of the crew had saddled for him. He lifted an arm aloft and dug spurs to the bay, so sending the balance of his hands after him on the run. They held this gail for a few miles following the trail Lamar had ridden. When they reached Coyote Knob, Kains pulled down and waited until his crew formed around him.

He believed firmly the next move across their boundary would occur at Horsehead, where Bray had already tried. For this reason he would concentrate his greatest strength at this point, and when the first nestler rode onto Block S grass he would strike without warning.

His thorny gaze cut his crew roughly and came to halt on a bearded man, young and not with Block S too long. McLaws would be the one to send into this draw and keep his eye on Elny Canyon.

The distance to be covered was so great he decided on dropping two men off here. Kains said abruptly, "McLaws, pick another fellow to help patrol. You'll shoot any nortier you find." And then he told McLaws in detail the bound- ary he was to patrol.

After they disappeared within the draw Kains continued to study his crew. His mouth finally re- laxed. "Bray's comin' back," he told his crew and smiled in an- ticipation. "We chased him be- fore but this time we make it fi- nal. Anybody got a stomach too weak for what's comin'?"

One man sullenly broke the sil- ence. "We'll handle it, Tay." Taylor Kains laughed. "Then ride! They swung out in a line behind him. A savage satisfaction was flowing through Kains.

Before he finished riding he might just as well throw his crew against Wolf Creek. He'd clean up all the Padres while he was about it.

That same morning in Wolf Creek, Sherry had her gripease packed by the time she heard Prole's approach in the hall.

Milt Prole thrust her door open without waiting for her invitation. "He was a small, slim, bowed man wearing denim overalls patched with blocks of a darker blue. His face was lined and sad- dle-browned from exposure be- neath the sun, his hands worn and bent."

"You able to hold your own around a cookfire?" Prole asked. She nodded. "I've worked for eating houses along the Mississi- ppi. Even a riverboat galley or two."

"You cut your own wood? A man like me ain't got time to be lookin' after you every minute." "Seems to me you were the one made the suggestion—or rather, Doc Lockridge," she said. "But since you question me, I'd like a place to live. I believe you do have a roof, Mr. Prole? And you do eat?"

A flush touched Prole's cheek- bones so that she was sorry for her quick reply. His glance slipped downward until he found her luggage, already packed. "You're all got together. I like that."

His unthinking remarks contin- ued to irritate her. She said blunt- ly, "Maybe you should look for someone else. A squaw might do your work more to your liking." "You'll do so long as you don't get fancy on me," he said and reached after her gripeases.

They went quickly down the creaking outside staircase. Hard by the curb stood the wagon. Into this Prole flung her be- longings then swung himself up the wheelhub to his seat.

A half hour later they were climbing with the terrain. She asked abruptly, "Mr. Prole, the men who rode last night? Would they bury the dead they found at Burdette's station?"

He jerked his head in the af- firmative thus setting her nagging thoughts of Burdette to rest. In turn Prole's look now focused on her.

"I'm askin' you to tell me some- thing," he said. "What do you know about Dave Sharadin? Lock- ridge says you two were on the stage."

His calloused fingers were open- ing and closing on his reins. Fi- nally he said, "Sharadin stood back of a hill last night and shot us up."

"Not Dave Sharadin?" "My Melinda says the same about him. Women can reach in pretty deep after a man. Lock- ridge swears Sharadin won't do it like that when he gets ready to move me out."

"Doc Lockridge has a level head." "He twisted his mouth wryly. "You don't know Doc so well. He's at my place drunk. But he was sure swappin' Block S land last night. I killed one of them fellows. He was ridin' Gatling's sorrel."

CHAPTER XXIII
The house was a miserable pine- board shanty which made her regret having left Wolf Creek. Not until Prole drew in his horse did she see Melinda at work beside the water trough. Her heart lifted as she watched the girl withdraw a plate from her basin and rack it on a board where other linware was draining. She swung out of the wagon, hurrying up the weed- grown path.

"Are you Melinda?" The girl watched her narrowly as she approached. "He said he aimed to fetch you. I'm surprised. I thought you'd be fat and ugly— you're not."

"Your father was surprised, too." "Oh, but I like you. We can do things together."

In another moment Sherry had caught Melinda to her breast. Looking up, Prole chose to pause while unharnessing his horse. For the first time since meeting Sher- ry his resentment wavered and he sensed a satisfaction of having done the correct thing.

Later in the morning Dave pushed his horse into Wolf Creek. He rode a shaggy gray, powerful and with long mane. Beside him trailed the liveried sorrel.

The livery man rose from a bar- rel chair in his office and stomped out. This Juan Gatling was a blond giant whom Dave had met only one time before, last night. There had been no livery here when Dave rode to war. And yet Juan Gatling seemed impelled to- ward him, perhaps by their com- mon understanding of horses.

Dave smiled at the man spread a hand against the neck of the gray. Gatling's eyes ran approx- imately over the deep chest and broad withers.

"Boys rode back from that mas- sacre," he announced solemnly. "Wasn't nobody alive. They'll be haulin' the wagons in directly."

Dave asked presently, "You seen Ferris? Or Morgan?" Then as Gatling's face darkened and he shook his head, Dave asked, "Lockridge's office around here somewhere?"

"Doc's in one of his moods." "I'll sober him up. Where is he, Juan?"

"Went out to Piny Hollow last night with Prole's wagon loaded with bottles."

It made things more difficult for Dave. Time was running short for Bluet, though the old man couldn't admit it. Dave meant to take Lockridge to Block S when

Leon Hart Is Amazed at Charge

DETROIT (U)—Reports that big Leon Hart has been giving less than his best efforts to the Detroit Lions brought club President Edw. J. Anderson to the fullback's defense yesterday.

In a telephone interview from Palm Springs, Calif., Anderson said the Lions coaching staff is free to make any decision it wants to add the 6-5, 250-pound back.

He added, however, that when he talked with the coaches about Hart "they said they're going to go along with Leon and hope he can come through for us."

Some Lions coaches and players, who asked that their names not be used, had suggested earlier that Hart has been "dogging it."

Anderson said he has "knocked ourselves out 12 games a season when this guy loaf around for all but two or three games a year and gets a lot of money."

Hart expressed surprise when told of the charge, adding "I've never given anything short of 100 percent effort" for the Lions.

"I don't know what to say," Hart said in a telephone interview from Pasadena where the Lions are working out for their game with the San Francisco 49ers. "As far as I'm concerned this whole thing is hearsay and does not exist."

Hart called attention to a hamstring muscle which was torn two days after the club's exhibition opener with Cleveland.

"Anyone who knows anything at all about a hamstring muscle knows it takes time for it to heal," said the former Notre Dame All-American. "I've reinjured it three times trying to press myself back into shape to play. That's my biggest mistake."

Both Buddy Parker, Hart's coach for six seasons, and George Wilson, Parker's successor, have been quoted as saying that Hart never quite reached his potential although he has been a standout on both offense and defense.

Anderson denied allegations by players that Hart has a "no-cut" contract.

The club president said that the coaching staff "is free to make any decision it wants in regard to Leon Hart."

Anderson added: "I've heard these grumblings by other players for a long time, but players don't determine who stays and who goes. I know Hart is a great football player under normal circumstances. I know he can win some games for this season."

Camden Defeats Hope Bobcats 14 to 7

Selects A&M, Baylor, Rice in Southwest

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK (U)—What is so rare as a day in June? Then, if ever, the world's in tune and a college football forecaster can forget all about moral victories, blocked punts, intercepted passes and offside penalties. But one can't forget about a 33-1 record, the second straight week of frustration.

This week's picks with no confirmation that the average will be any better:

Texas A&M over Arkansas: John Crow is the hero of the Texas Aggie squad. So, shall we say "as the Crow flies."

Oklahoma over Kansas State: The Sooners know how their rivals do not read the Oklahoma clippings. This could even become lopsided.

Michigan over Iowa: It is a Michigan habit to defeat Iowa. Last year's only Hawkeye loss was to the Wolverines by a field goal. The margin won't be much larger this time. This is the week's TV offering.

Auburn over Florida: Auburn got its offense into high gear last week as it walloped Houston, Florida was at its peak defeating LSU. Auburn gets revenge for that 20-0 setback of a year ago.

Notre Dame over Navy: In a squaker.

Michigan State over Wisconsin: It is about time for Walt Kowalsky and his pals to get back on the track.

Duke over Georgia Tech: Tech's sophomores to make it interesting but Duke finishes on top.

Ohio State over Northwestern: It is the fourth rugged Big Ten assignment in as many weeks for the tiny Northwestern squad.

Army over Colgate: The Cadets put on a dress rehearsal for President Eisenhower.

North Carolina State over Wake Forest: You could have paid off the family mortgage had you known in September that State would be undefeated the first weekend in November.

Texas over Southern Methodist: The Methodist line lacks experience.

Mississippi over Houston: The Ole Miss sophomores matured early.

Oregon over Stanford: Now that the Oregonians know that a triumph means the Rose Bowl assignment, they will be tough to handle even though they will be visiting Stanford. Spot for a possible upset.

Tennessee over North Carolina: Another spot for an upset.

Skippering over the others in a hurry:

Friday: Boston University over George Washington, Miami over Villanova.

Saturday: EAST: Cornell over Columbia; Pennsylvania over Harvard; West Virginia over Penn State; Pittsburgh over Syracuse; Princeton over Brown; Dartmouth over Yale; Rutgers over Delaware.

SOUTH: Georgia over Alabama; Kentucky over Memphis State; Louisiana State over Vanderbilt; Mississippi State over Tulane; South Carolina over Maryland; Virginia Tech over Richmond; Virginia Military over Virginia; the Citadel over William & Mary.

MIDWEST: Cincinnati over DePaul; College of Pacific over Colgate; Missouri over Colorado; Marquette over Drake; Illinois over Purdue; Nebraska over Kansas; Oklahoma State over Texas Tech; Minnesota over Indiana; Wichita over Dayton.

SOUTHWEST: Arizona State (Tempe) over New Mexico A&M; Baylor over Texas Christian; Hardin-Simmons over Texas Western; Rice over Clemson; West Texas over Arizona.

FAR WEST: Idaho over Montana; New Mexico over Denver; Oregon State over Washington; Washington over Southern California; UCLA over California; Utah State over Brigham Young; Utah over Colorado State; University of Wyoming over Air Force Academy.

A Former U. S. Senator Dies

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (UP)—Former U. S. Sen. Peter G. Gerry, 79, died at his home today.

Gerry, a Democrat, was a millionaire descendant of signers of the Declaration of Independence.

A vigorous opponent of the New sas squad, commenting:

"We feel that it is only fair not to have them competing under the pressure of winning to save the coach's job. We want to give our undivided attention to the 1957 four games on our schedule and thought this was the best way to do it."

This certainly ought to calm things down."

Math's chief assistants are Paul Scholer, Dave Rute, Dick Fiskely and Larry Wattman.

They came with him from Washington, D. C., where he coached there.

Ohio players have flocked to KU the past four years. The 1957 roster lists 17 from Ohio — only four fewer than from Kansas.

Panthers Gain Loop Lead With Victory

The Camden Panthers powered their way into the AAA Conference lead with a 14 to 7 victory over the Hope Bobcats in Coleman Stadium last night.

The Panthers scored in the second period with a 25 yard touchdown pass by Billy Furlow who also added the extra point. With 2 minutes gone in the final period, the Bobcats capitalized on a bad pass from center on fourth down for the Panthers. The Turpinmen took the ball on the 22 and in four plays, Tommy Polk barreled over from the one. Porterfield's kick was good and the game was tied up 7-7.

With 3 minutes and 10 seconds remaining, the Bobcats drove to the Camden 15 only to fall short. Four plays took the pigskin to the Bobcats 30 and from there, Shooter lofted a pass to Berry in the end zone for the winning touchdown. Furlow added the extra point.

The Bobcats journey to Magnolia next Friday night for another conference tilt.

Spider Webb to Battle Voughn

BY JACK HANDED

NEW YORK (U)—While Carmen Basilio waits on Sugar Ray Robinson and the International Boxing Club to decide when he will defend his world middleweight title, the contenders are getting restless.

Spider Webb, Chicago, the No. 6 boy in the Ring ratings, will try to strengthen his claim tonight in a 10-round match with Willie Vaughn of Los Angeles at Madison Square Garden. Webb is the 13 to 5 favorite.

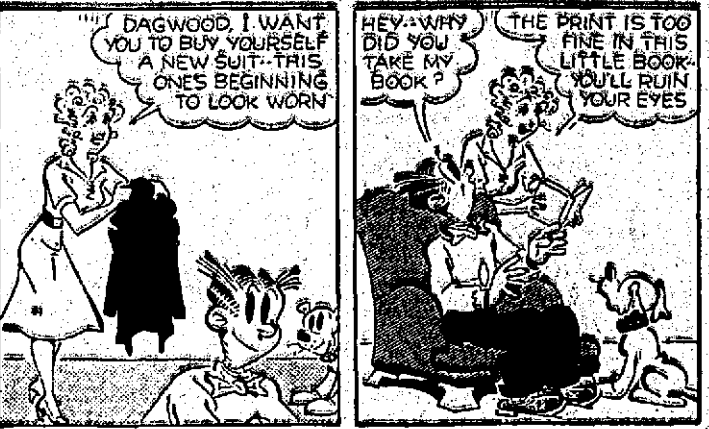

Gene Fullmer, the No. 2 contender, meets Neil Rivers at the Garden. Nov. 15 and Roy Calhoun, No. 3 takes on Bobby Boyd, No. 9, in the same ring Nov. 22. Calhoun recently whipped Rocky Castellani in a dreary bout.

LOVE GOES 'ROUND AND 'ROUND—Starting to go around together early, Robert Gardiner Jr., 4, and Renee Bishop, 3, do better than grabbing the brass ring on the merry-go-round at the County Fair in Cobleskill, N.Y. Little Renee almost slides out of the saddle as she leans over to kiss her boy friend.

PLAYING WITH FIRE—Santos Martin, left, and his brother, Jose, perform an exciting juggling act with six flaming torches which they hurl back and forth with breath-taking speed. The Argentine-born brothers are blindfolded and wear sacks over their upper bodies for protection from the searing flames. Perfecting the act took 26 years, the brothers say. They are currently performing in Chicago.

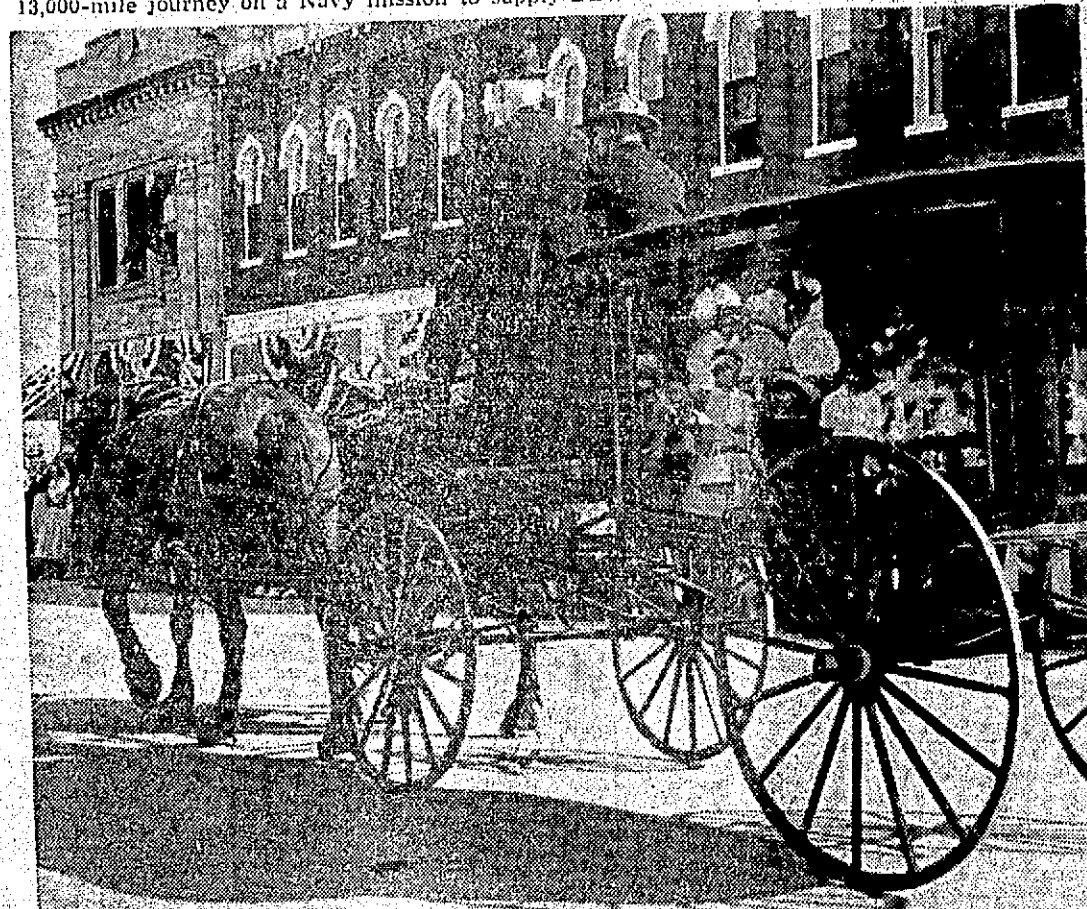

UNPERTURBED—Looking as cool as the wax dummy she is, this mannequin maintains her royal dignity as an unexpected visitor smashes into her display window home in Casper, Wyo. Warren Walker, of Casper, accidentally knocked the automatic transmission of his car into "drive" as he leaned over to put some letters into a curbside mailbox. And "drive" the car did right into the store window. Walker suffered shock and lacerations of the left arm.

RECORD VOYAGE—The U.S. Coast Guard cutter Spar, right, is the first ship to have sailed around the North American Continent. The sturdy little ship, along with cutters Bramble, foreground, and Storis, left, completed the first U.S. crossing of the famed Northwest Passage. The Spar began its voyage from Bristol, R.I., on May 19, 1957, and was joined by the Bramble at Panama, C.Z., May 31, and the Storis at Seattle, Wash., on July 1. The Bramble and Storis will continue on to their home ports after putting in with the Spar at Boston. The vessels made the 13,000-mile journey on a Navy mission to supply DEW line bases.

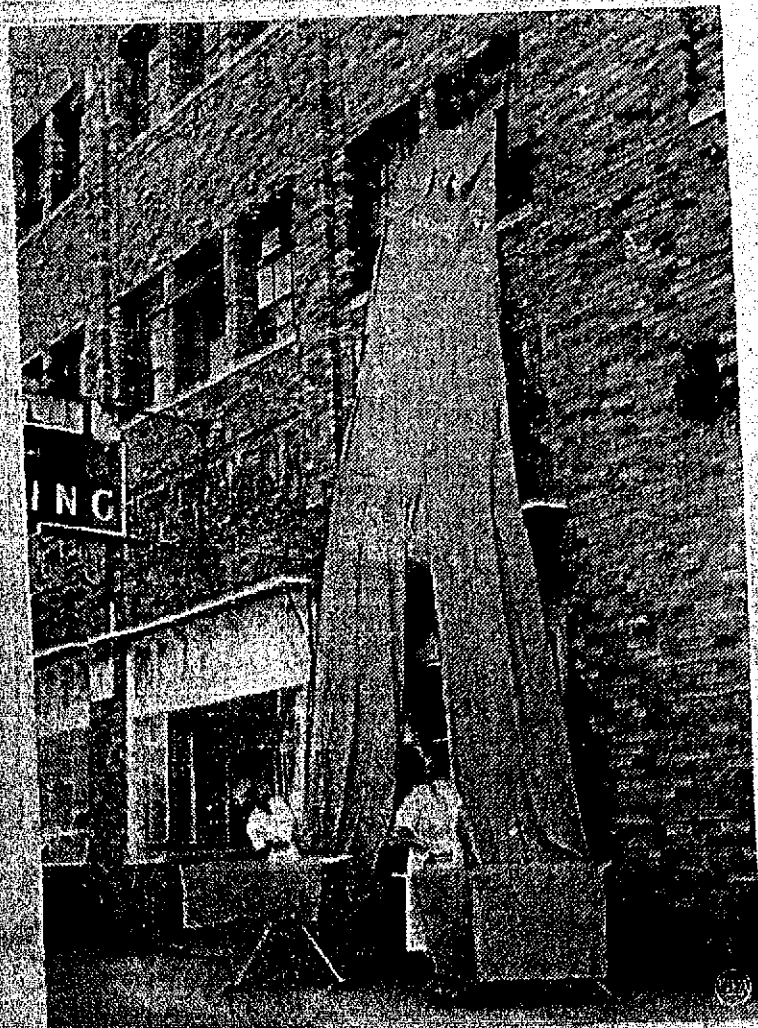

SLIPPERY FELLOW—Taking to the ice about as easily as a duck to water, "Louis," a French poodle skims across the frozen surface in free and easy style. Actually, Louis, appearing in an ice show in Chicago, doesn't skate on the icy blades at all. He lifts the "skates" in the air and slides along on his forelegs. Ringsiders are usually so entranced by the pooch's performance that they don't notice the maneuver.

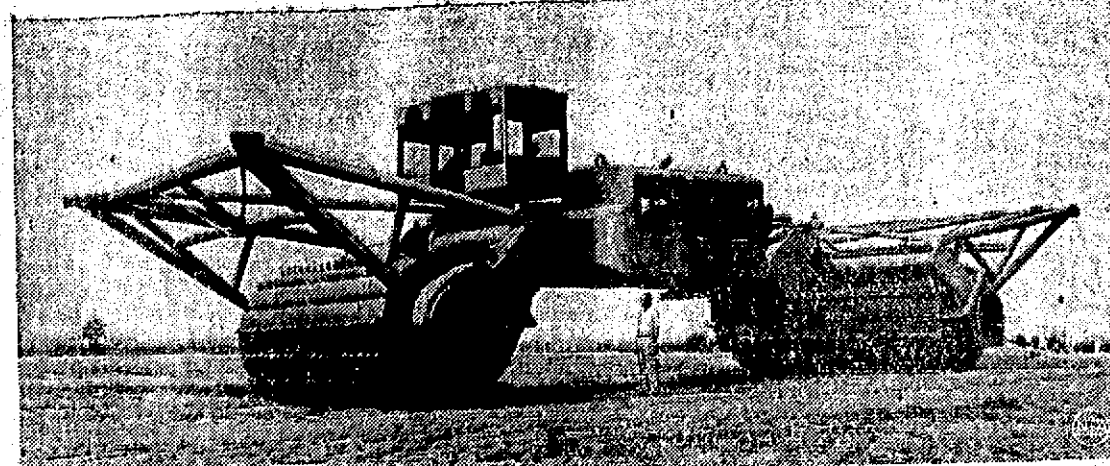

REFLECTION OF LIFE—A reflection of life appears in the gleaming window of this old hearse at the Burlington, Kan., centennial parade. Despite its grim appearance, the hearse drew smiles from bystanders mirrored in the window.

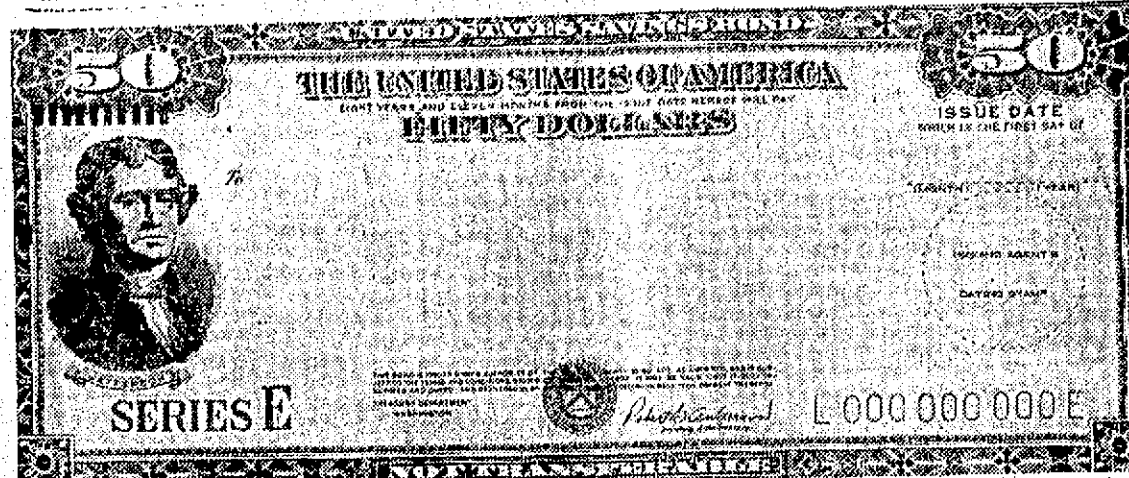

RED TUNE, AMERICAN CHORUS—Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-lai clasps hands while singing "Ain't Gonna Study War No More" with members of a U.S. youth delegation in Peiping. WORLD'S LARGEST—Mrs. Murphy would have to whip up a lot of powder to cover these overalls, claimed to be the largest in the world by the makers, Key Work Clothes of Fort Smith, Kan. Mrs. Edna G. Glenn, left, and Mrs. Nellie Blosser show one way of pressing the 20-foot-long, 150-pound garment after it was sent to a Fort Smith laundry for cleaning. Four persons could fit in each of the huge pockets.

MEANEST MACHINE—This huge tree-crusher can clear an acre of unproductive forest in 15 minutes. Designed and built by R. G. LeTourneau, Inc., of Longview, Tex., the brutal combination of mass and power can chew its way through a forest, ripping trees up by the roots, slapping them to the ground and finally smashing them to splinters for thorough burning. The monster is 75 feet long, 22 feet wide and 19 feet high. It weighs 150 tons. The maker believes it will be extremely useful clearing jungle in places such as Africa and South America. The machine costs almost $200,000.

STREAMLINED—Don't be surprised if that U.S. Savings Bond you buy from now on looks and feels a little different—it's just been streamlined. The new smaller bond is going to have more punch. In fact, it has 13 punches—all of which mean something to the Treasury Department. In addition to the smaller size printing saving the taxpayer $500,000 a year, it might also prevent some of those washing machine tragedies, caused when the fellows had to fold the old bond, then forgot to remove it from a shirt pocket.

REAL HOUSEBOAT—Larry Villa, a Smithtown, N.Y., contractor has built himself this $50,000 seagoing ranch house, complete with three cedar-paneled bedrooms, two tile baths, wall-to-wall carpeting, and a fireplace. The "home," called the Driftwood, can cruise at eight knots. It is powered by three concealed 60-horsepower outboard motors.

SCENIC DRIVE—Two and three-tone autos are nothing new, but this one in Monroe, Wis., takes the artistic cake with a paint job of woodland scenes all around its sides. Used by a local garage for service calls, the rolling mural was painted by Frank Engstrom, of nearby Brookfield. William Boyd, at the wheel, takes Sam Boyd, left, and Robert Coe for a spin in the traveling art gallery.

The "Snapper," an ion-propelled vehicle, would develop enough thrust through discharge of high velocity particles, ions would propel 3,000-pound vehicle thousands of miles an hour. Vehicle was conceived as weekend hobby by group of design engineers of the Rockwell division of the North American Aircraft. Feasibility of such propulsion is being studied under Air Force contract.
